

Its the Pits.

Well it was the pits, since early teens I excessively sweated from my arm pits. Sounds funny and may be already you've muttered sweaty betty or made a joke in some way but thats Ok, just like someone whose obviously overweight I heard all the fat jokes there is and I've been made fun off, been bullied and labeled with various adjectives all denoting that I stank.

When other girls wore off the shoulder dresses and open tops I had a wardrobe of particularly dull fashion all with one thing in common. From dresses to Blouses they had to hide heavy sweat marks.

No deodorant would come close to even camouflaging the problem and as for a social life, just lets not go there. Boyfriends forget about it, I had trouble keeping girl friends.

It was one of my closest friends who contacted Tinkable on my behalf, just about seven months ago now. She attended a consultation, got all the info and spoke to other people who had been treated by Tinkable.

So when she sat me down and broached the subject she had all the answers and made it difficult for me to say no.

Reluctantly I went along, with my friend in tow. I actually attended two other consultations before I decided to go ahead.

Why did someone tell me about Botox before. Of course I knew botox was for lines and wrinkles and I even knew people who have had it.

But why did no body tell me that botox can stop underarm sweating.

To say the treatment was a success is an under statement it has completely changed my life. In just under seven months I have drained my bank account all spent on clothes, I have a new boyfriend and have just started a new job which involves travelling and meeting people. How wonderful to be able to travel by train.

Because no one told me I want to tell you as much about this treatment as I can.

Charlie explained that she would do a very simple diagnostic test which involved cornflower and iodine ( which looked like a yellow solution painted on my arm pits) and showed very quickly the most offending areas of my arm pits. ( The sweat turned the yellow to a dark blue/purple colour)

I then had a series of quite painless injections under each arm which i have to say were over in a couple of minutes, literally.

Consultation lasted three times the length of the actual treatment and i remember thinking this has to be too good to be true, that feeling was further endorsed when i was asked to return for a follow up appointment in three weeks at no extra cost. Here we go i thought they don't even expect it to work.

forty eight hours later i was completely sweat free and have remained so, i kept the follow up appointment and the same simple test showed no evidence of sweating at all, so 'good bye sweaty betty '

I seriously can not recommend this treatment enough, my sincere thanks to the Tinkable team.
